Driver Blinded, Machine Careens Through Fence On Towpath; Thieves Strip Car

A new Chevrolet touring car was shot straight ahead, broke through the heavy frame fence and landed in the weeds and drift 22 feet from the road. The machine landed on its right side, with the front end facing Portsmouth or junction of the roads. Criswell climbed from among the wreckage and found that he had been fortunate in escaping with a severe shaking up. This morning when he visited the scene he found thieves had taken three tires and the battery from the wrecked machine. An attempt had been made to remove the fourth tire, but the thieves must have been frightened away before they could get it off. The machine was owned by J. A. Criswell, father of the driver. The wrecker outfit from the Glockner garage brought the wreckage to Portsmouth this morning.

COURT RESERVES DECISION ON ELECTION DISPUTE

COLUMBUS, O., October 22.—(By the Associated Press)—The state supreme court is expected to render a decision next Tuesday on whether the committee for progressive political action, which is sponsoring the independent progressive candidacies of Senators LaFollette and Wheeler, are entitled to place inspectors, challengers and witnesses in the voting houses in Cuyahoga county on election day, November 4. The court took the case under advisement yesterday after hearing arguments by Attorney E. S. Myers, of Cleveland, manager of the LaFollette campaign in Cuyahoga county, and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Parsons, representing the election board. The question at issue is whether the committee for progressive political action is in fact a political party entitled to all the privileges of the two major parties, Democrats and Republicans. The decision is expected to affect all counties in the state.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, as it contains creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and kills the germ. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement

EDWARD D. FUNK, OWNER OF NEW BOSTON FILLING STATION MURDERED, GUN USER FLEES; ROBBERY POSSIBLE MOTIVE

Death-Dealing Weapon Found On Munn's Run Pike; Owner Being Sought; Victim Lived Only a Short Time.

Developments in the murder of Edward D. Funk, 53, New Boston gasoline filling station proprietor, Tuesday night at 7:30, tended to strengthen both theories and clues that are being followed by New Boston police and city and county officials in their efforts to locate the gun user who shot down Mr. Funk in his place of business, Gallia street and West avenue.

Finding of the gun, thought to have been used by the killer and the continued absence of a young man sought by the officers leads officers to place credence in the theory that local talent is responsible for the murder.

Long distance telephone communication with police officers near Charleston, at an early hour this morning, added strength to the theory that out-of-town men were responsible for the shooting of Mr. Funk, in an attempted robbery of the station. The license number of a Chevrolet roadster seen about the village with suspicious characters in it was found to have been sold just twelve days ago to a man who would not be questioned further. Mr. Funk remarked that everything was getting black before him and he reeled and started to fall, throwing his arms about. Everling then went outside and seeing Mrs. Ulrich, Cornwell, 3702 Gallia street, on the porch of her home, just across the street from the oil station, yelled for her to call a doctor. The woman had a baby in her hands and did not make a move to indicate she understood the young man who then ran to the Conley place of business, just beyond the Cornwell home.

Mr. Everling then returned to the oil station and raised Mr. Funk's head from the floor in an endeavor to make breathing easier for the dying man who was unable to talk by this time.

Fire Chief William Adkins and Lawrence Fitch who were at the engine house, went to the oil station in the chief's car when the call reached the police station about the shooting. Mr. Fitch used the telephone in the oil station to summon the Euchar ambulance and Coroner Fowler. Mr. Conley in the meantime had called Dr. W. G. Cheney and he arrived on the scene about the same time as Chief Adkins and Mr. Fitch. Dr. Cheney advised the removing of Mr. Funk to his home when he found he was beyond human aid. Coroner Virgil Fowler, examined the body in the ambulance in front of the Funk home, 321 Ohio avenue and then ordered the remains taken to the Daehler morgue for a post mortem examination.

Answer Description
These two men answer the description of the two strangers seen about the village during the last few days in a Chevrolet roadster. C. O. Jenkins and Lou Jenkins of the Hancock and Jenkins garage reported to the village police last night that the two men had been about their garage for some time Tuesday afternoon. According to work in the village and then asked how far it was to fronton and how long it would take to get there. Lou Jenkins recalled last night that the men talking to his brother yesterday were the same two who stopped at the garage Monday and talked about being on their way to Akron to work in a rubber plant. These two men occupied a Chevrolet roadster bearing a West Virginia license tag and name plate of a small town near Charleston. Yesterday Lou Jenkins says that when he approached his brother and the two men during their conversation that one of the men turned his back on him, leaving the impression that he did not want to be recognized. Mr. Jenkins furnished the police with the license number of the machine, Mayor Bierley, in touch with the office of a town near Charleston, learned that a Chevrolet roadster carrying that license number had been owned by a lumber man in that community, but that he had disposed of the machine just twelve days ago to a man who he was going to Ohio to work.

Saw Man Dash Into Nearby Alley
Other persons in the village report seeing the strangers about the village in the roadster. Mrs. John Cornwell, 1415 West avenue, whose cottage is on the alley, says she came out on her porch when she heard the shots and got outside just in time to see a man dash into the alley. Another report reached New Boston late last night that a Chevrolet roadster passed through Wheelersburg at a high rate of speed about eight o'clock last night. Police notified nearby towns and cities, Huntington, Ashland, Ironton, Waverly, Chillicothe and Cincinnati and asked police in those places to watch for the eagerly-sought roadster and two men suspected.

After being removed to the Daehler morgue a post-mortem examination was held by Coroner Fowler and Drs. W. G. Cheney and O. D. Taylor. One bullet broke the thumb on the right hand and it is thought that this is the same one that grazed Funk's chest and crashed through the west side window. The other bullet entered the back under the seventh rib, left side, and plunged through the body, coming out the back. Funk said: "I am shot. Take me to a doctor." Everling then noticed the blood on the man's hand and the front of his shirt. He got out of his machine and stepped into the oil station, asking Mr. Funk who shot him. Mr. Funk replied that it was a man with a handkerchief over his face. Before he could be questioned further, Mr. Funk remarked that everything was getting black before him and he reeled and started to fall, throwing his arms about. Everling then went outside and seeing Mrs. Ulrich, Cornwell, 3702 Gallia street, on the porch of her home, just across the street from the oil station, yelled for her to call a doctor. The woman had a baby in her hands and did not make a move to indicate she understood the young man who then ran to the Conley place of business, just beyond the Cornwell home.

Believe Gun-User Is Local Man
While they are keeping silent on their movements in running down every possible phase of the local case, it is known that the village officers place credence in the opinion that the gun-user was a man from outside the village. The search last night for the young man sought by the village police, they are giving more time and attention to this clue than the one that indicates out-of-town persons had a hand in the attempted robbery and murder.

Mr. Funk was shot in three places, but the wounds are thought to have been caused by two bullets. The revolver found this morning contained only two empty shells. Last night there were some who said they were positive that three shots were fired. The bullet which caused death entered the back and came out through the breast-bone, this bullet having caused a hemorrhage of the lungs that resulted in death. The other two wounds were across the chest and hand, and were probably caused by one bullet. One bullet passed through a side window of the oil station and the other bullet hit the heavy board wall near the backboard. The one in the heavy board wall was recovered this morning by Marshal Ollie Cassidy of New Boston and fits the 38-caliber gun that was found this morning.

Gun Found On Munn's Run Pike
The gun was found by school children who were on their way to the Munn's Run pike school this morning. The end of the gun was sticking out from under a piece of tin. The school pupils notified their teacher of the find and she had a neighbor notify the New Boston police. Marshal Ollie Cassidy went to the scene and took charge of the machine and a 38-caliber positive 38-caliber with a cylinder. The gun, disassembled, is not numbered at all, looks like a new one. The gun only contained four shells, and one of two muffled shells shows that the trigger had been snapped on it.

Youth Eye-Witness To the Shooting
Ralph Smith, 12 year old son of W. C. Smith, 2544 Gallia street, New Boston, was an eye-witness to the shooting and has furnished the officers with the best description of the gun-user. The boy's home is about a half block below the oil station and about 1200 ft. he was sent to the Munn's Run grocery on West avenue, towards the west end of the village, and the boy had just reached these signboards and was at the edge of the oil station driveway when he saw a white man step from the door of the station, pull out a handkerchief, put it over his face and enter the station, closing the door behind him. The boy continued on his way towards the oil station as two shots rang out. The youth was near the east side of the station when the gun-user ran down the building, down West avenue and into the alley between the station and Gallia avenue, the alley being the corner of the oil station and the Conley soft drink parlor and told Mr. Conley that Mr. Funk had been shot. Mr. Conley did not put any credence in the boy's story and did not call the police until Gilbert Everling came about five minutes later and told him the police.

Mr. Everling First To Reach Murdered Man
Gilbert Everling, who lives at 4228 Oak street, New Boston, and is employed at the Crown Tailors store in this village, was the first person to reach Mr. Funk. Everling was driving down West avenue towards the station when he saw a man run around the corner of the oil station, across West avenue, and into the alley. He always buys oil and oil from Mr. Funk and runs into the station as usual last night. As he pulled up to the station he called to Mr. Funk, who was inside the door "give me some oil." About the same time Mr.

Funk said: "I am shot. Take me to a doctor." Everling then noticed the blood on the man's hand and the front of his shirt. He got out of his machine and stepped into the oil station, asking Mr. Funk who shot him. Mr. Funk replied that it was a man with a handkerchief over his face. Before he could be questioned further, Mr. Funk remarked that everything was getting black before him and he reeled and started to fall, throwing his arms about. Everling then went outside and seeing Mrs. Ulrich, Cornwell, 3702 Gallia street, on the porch of her home, just across the street from the oil station, yelled for her to call a doctor. The woman had a baby in her hands and did not make a move to indicate she understood the young man who then ran to the Conley place of business, just beyond the Cornwell home.

beast bone. This is the bullet that is thought to have lodged in the south wall near the floor. Mr. Funk is thought to have been seated when the man stepped into the oil station and probably arose when the man drew the gun. Wounds indicate he had his left side turned towards the gun-user when the first shot, the one that grazed him, was fired and that he then turned clear around and had his back to the man by the time he fired a second time.

Mrs. Funk At Local Meeting When Notified
Mrs. Funk was attending a meeting of the Eastern Star in Portsmouth at the time of the shooting. She was with Mrs. Earl Wolfe and as soon as he learned of the shooting, Mr. Wolfe had Fire Chief Adkins bring him to the Masonic temple where both women were located. They first went to Hempstead hospital in a belief that Mr. Funk had been taken there. On arrival home Mrs. Funk was told of the death by her eldest daughter. A short time later, while a big crowd was at the scene of the shooting, one of the daughters took charge of the cash register receipts at the oil station and the amount of money found indicated that if robbery was the motive the gun user fled with out obtaining any money.

Sheriff Harry Dunham last night announced that a $200 reward would be paid for the arrest of the gun user. This morning the reward money was increased to $500 when the local Masonic lodge announced $500 would be paid for the arrest and conviction of the slayer.

Mr. Funk Operated Two Filling Stations
Mr. Funk operated two oil filling stations in New Boston, one at Ohio and West avenues, which he ran and West avenues, which he ran and chased about three years ago, and the one in which he was slain which he started about a year ago. He was a good business man, and a popular citizen. On every hand, last night, citizens of New Boston spoke of his sterling qualities, and of the many friendships which he had made during his residence in the village, which began in 1913.

In that year, Mr. Funk came to New Boston from Baltimore, Md., and took employment in the steel plant. After that he operated a confectionery and later entered the oil business, in which he had prospered.

About a year ago he disposed of his confectionery to Russell Middaugh of New Boston. The confectionery is next door to the Rhodes avenue oil station managed by Mr. Funk.

Fire Chief Heard The Shots Fired

Fire Chief Adkins and Clerk of Village Council Russell Middaugh had passed the oil station just a few seconds before the shooting. They were driving east on Gallia street and had just reached the Conley soft drink parlor when they heard shots fired. Both insist they heard three shots. A Ford was near the Conley place and at that time they were of the opinion that the engine was back-firing. Chief Adkins had just reached the station and parked his car when the call came in that Mr. Funk had been shot. The gun user was no doubt about the oil station at the time Chief Adkins and Mr. Middaugh passed the place. This morning Allen Slattery, salesman, reported to Mayor Bierley that he passed West avenue in his machine about 7:15 and at that time he slowed down as usual to see if any workmen were at the corner waiting a ride to town. He says he noticed a man answering the description of the gun user standing behind a telephone pole at the west end of the Conley barn. Another man dressed in a dark suit was behind a telephone pole across the street in front of the Ulrich Cornwell home. Both could watch the oil station from behind the telephone poles.

TWO STORES ROBBED

After being on their good behavior for several days and to cast off suspicion, thieves again were active in Portsmouth last night.
The cigar store on Waller street near the N. and W. depot, run by "Pop" Mahan, was entered through a side window. About $7.50 in cash and several boxes of cigars and a silver cigarette case were taken.
Thieves also entered the Great A. and P. Tea Company store on Gallia street and made away with about $22 in cash. The store was entered from the back door, the lock on the door being broken. Officer Templeman was detailed on the robberies.

as shocked, as petrified, as I was myself.

"Next?"

"I think, Miss Raynor came—bursting past Miss Turner in the house doorway, and almost at the same instant Orville Kent appeared at the south door. He came in and went at once to his sister, and then we all began to make exclamations and ask questions. But there's the scene—as you call it."

"The next thing is," Dobbins proceeded, "to fix the time accurately. Do you know it, Mr. Finley?"

"I know that it was a little before seven—ten minutes or so before the hour. But I didn't look at my watch."

"Do you know the hour, Mrs. Raynor?"

"No—I've no closer idea than that it was a little before seven."

"Miss Raynor?"

"I think the shot occurred about fifteen minutes before the hour—and yet, no—I put on my boudoir light at five to seven, I think, or was it twenty to? I can't remember. Why does it matter so much?"

"Do you know, Mr. Kent?"

"Not precisely; but when I left Miss Raynor on the bridge she had just said it was seven o'clock, and that is nearly five minutes' walk away. When I came to the south door I saw Mr. Finley and the others gathered round in consternation—just as he described them."

"I have here before me, then, the first intimation of the scene, with the exception of Miss Turner. I think her presence is advisable."

Dobbins stepped to the door and summoned the nurse, who came at once.

"Please tell me of the tragedy as you know it, Miss Turner," the detective said.

"There's little to tell," said Miss Turner, who looked utterly worn and exhausted, perhaps owing to her experience with the doctors in the next room. "I heard a shot—"

"At what time?"

"At exactly five minutes before seven."

"How do you know so definitely?"

"Because, as a nurse, I always know precisely what time it is. I glance at my wrist watch constantly—partly from habit, partly from the necessity in my profession of always knowing the time. Without looking, I can tell you now that it is exactly eight minutes after eleven."

"That's right," Dobbins said, with a satisfied glance at his own time piece. "Where were you at five minutes before seven, Miss Turner?"

"In the parlor."

"And you, Miss Raynor?"

"In my boudoir—as I've told you."

"You, Mr. Finley?"

"On the east veranda."

"Mr. Kent?"

"Between the brook at the foot of the hill and this house."

"Mr. Goddard?"

"In my bedroom."

"Mrs. Raynor?"

Nan's face was very white and her voice faltered as she said, "On the west terrace."

"But," and Miss Turner spoke with a cold clearness, "I saw you, Mrs. Raynor, just going out of the sun parlor."

Plan To Elect Permanent Officers At Meeting To Be Held Here Next Monday

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The body of Douglas Raynor is found in the early evening on the floor of the sun room at Flower Acres, his Long Island home. Raynor has been shot through the heart. Standing over the dead man, pistol in hand, is Malcolm Finley, former sweetheart of Raynor's wife, Nancy. Eva Turner, Raynor's nurse, stands by the door with her hand still on the light switch. In a moment Nancy appears, white-faced and terrified. Orville Kent, Nancy's brother, comes in from the south side of the room, and then Ezra Goddard, friend of Finley, with others, entered upon the scene. Police, headed by Detective Dobbins, are conducting an investigation. "I found Mr. Raynor on the floor, a pistol by his side," Finley explains. "I picked up the weapon. Suddenly the lights came on, and Miss Turner stood in the house doorway."

or as I turned on the light."

"Just coming in—you mean," cried Orville Kent.

"No," Miss Turner declared, "just going out—and hurriedly. She came back, a moment later, and acted surprised—at what she already knew."

"You're mistaken," said Finley, in a quiet way. "Your own surprise at the fearful scene the sudden light showed you dazed your eyes as well as your brain, and you couldn't tell just what you did see."

"Is her unsupported testimony to be implicitly relied on, Mr. Dobbins?"

"Indeed I could," Miss Turner spoke with decided asperity. "But I will admit I don't know which of you it was that killed him. Only—Mr. Dobbins—it must have been one or the other and they both know about it."

"I think Mr. Turner should be warned," put in Goddard's stern voice, "that she is unwise to accuse any one so definitely of what she cannot prove. As nearly as I can learn, the scene which Mr. Dobbins so earnestly desired to have reconstructed includes some five or six individuals—any one of whom might have shot Mr. Raynor, besides the possibility of his having shot himself. Therefore, Miss Turner, for your own good, let me advise you to say less and think more."

"After I have thought more—I can say a good deal more," was the significant response to this, and then Miss Turner was called back by the doctors.

"A valuable witness, that nurse," said Detective Dobbins, noting his hour in satisfaction. "The way she knows the time, now; there's efficiency for you—there's reliability for you. We'll learn a lot from that woman when the time comes for her further revelation."

"But don't forget, Mr. Dobbins," Goddard warned him, "that Miss Turner is just as open to suspicion as any one else. Don't forget that although Mr. Finley was at the east door, and Mrs. Raynor at the west one, yet they may have been attracted by the sound of a shot that was fired by some one who was at either the north or the south door."

"But Mr. Kent came in at the south door—"

"That was later, Mr. Dobbins. It is quite possible that an intruder from outside came in at the south door, fired the shot that killed Mr. Raynor, and disappeared again, before Mr. Kent reached the house at all."

"In that case you would have seen him running away, Mr. Kent?" the detective interrogated.

"Not in the dusk," returned Orville Kent, thoughtfully. "I am sure, as I make out the time of the shooting, he would have had time to get away before I came to the south door. It was too dark to see a man if he decided not to be seen—I mean by that, if he kept to the shadow of the shrubbery. A man walking straight away from the south door I should probably have seen, but not one who skulked furtively away—as, of course, I had no thought of looking for any such person."

Every one present, except the detective, seemed relieved at the suggestion of an intruder from the outside. Goddard followed it up.

"As you can clearly see, Mr. Dobbins, the probability of an intrusion by an outsider is too strong to be neglected. I trust, therefore, you will thoroughly investigate it before accusing without sufficient evidence, any member of the household."

"Evidence will be forthcoming, Mr. Goddard. We have a great score, begun to look for it. Testimony comes first, and we have discovered much already. The time of the shot is accurately fixed by Miss Turner at five minutes before seven."

"Is her unsupported testimony to be implicitly relied on, Mr. Dobbins?"

TRANSPORTATION SERVICE, ECONOMY AND FACTS

One of the N. & W. new electric engines was placed in service in the electrification district between Farm and Bluefield, W. Va., on August 20. This is one of four of these engines being constructed on order placed some months ago. The second engine has been received and will be put in service shortly and the remaining two engines are expected by the first of the year. These new engines, known as Class LC-2, are much larger and more powerful than the Class LC-1 engines, 12 of which have been in service since 1916. The new LC-2 engine has a total weight of $32,000 pounds and a maximum starting or tractive effort of 183,000 pounds, while the LC-1 weighs 600,000 pounds and has a maximum starting or tractive effort of 132,000 pounds. In other words, the new engine weighs 30 per cent more than the old one and has 40 per cent more power. Two of these new engines can handle a 1200 ton train up Elkiron grade at a speed of 14 miles per hour. Prior to the electrification of this grade 3 Class "Z" Mallet steam engines hauled a train of about 2500 tons at a speed of about 7 miles per hour while back in the days when Class "W" or "M" steam engines were used on Elkiron a three engine train was given about 1800 tons and a four engine train about 2500 tons with which they made from four to seven miles per hour.

HUSBAND JUSTIFIED HIS WIFE MARCHING WITH PEKIN TROOPS

RENEW BATTLE

MURKIN, Oct. 22.—The battle at Shanhaiwan between the Manchurian troops of Chang Tso-lin and the Central Chinese government forces under Wu Pei Fu was renewed vigorously today but nightfall found the positions of the armies virtually unchanged.

At last reports the central government troops in Shanhaiwan were defending desperately the hill Chinese which takes its name from the famous Buddhist Temple erected there. It is five miles from the north gate of the city.

Today's official communique claimed further successes in the Shanhaiwan region, asserting that the Manchurian troops had been the means of killing many of the central government soldiers. Fifteen thousand central government troops were thrown forward in an attempt to break the Manchurian line inside the great wall, the communique asserted. Terrific fighting, lasting through the night followed.

BITTER CAMPAIGN SEEN IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—The news that President Ebert had decreed the dissolution of the Reichstag came as a surprise to a great majority of the deputies who either are in Berlin or on the way to attend the session of parliament which was to have begun tomorrow. Political circles had hoped for a compromise which would enable the minority cabinet to continue in office, especially as the cardinal problems of Germany's foreign relations had been definitely solved through the govern-

YOUR PAIN MAY BE NEURITIS

Many sufferers who are treating for rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago or sciatica are really afflicted with neuritis. This disease of the nerves causes pain, aches, and soreness in different parts of the body, just like the ailments mentioned above.

STEEBENVILLE, O., Oct. 22.—One man was killed, another fatally scalded and a third thrown into the Ohio River when a local freight train on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was wrecked east here last night.

HUMAN HEAD FOUND COVERED IN NEWSPAPER

DIXON, Ill., Oct. 22.—A human head was in the morgue here today while police investigated the possibility of murder. The head was picked up on the Lincoln Highway just outside of the city.

The head was wrapped in a copy of the Sioux City Journal of Sept. 20. Sheriff E. C. Risley of Lee county puts little credence in the murder theory. He believes the head may have been thrown out of an automobile by a medical student or a physician. The head was that of a man and was well preserved.

POWER PLANT FAILS, BOS-TONIANS WALK

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—The traction system of this city—tunnel, subway and elevated—failed for nearly two hours this morning when traffic normally is at its height, and half a million persons were forced to walk, wait, or beg rides from motorists or to pile on congested ferries and suburban rail systems. It was possibly the most extensive tie-up in this city's history.

The cause was the clogging of the water supply to the boilers of the main power plant at South Boston of the Boston Elevated Railway which operates all traction lines in the city.

DONAHAY ASSAILED FOR DODGING METHODS

CANTON, Oct. 22.—Three times today in Worcester, Alliance and Canton, Harry L. Davis, Republican candidate for Governor, reiterated his demand that Governor Winthrop Donahay announce to the people of Ohio which of the three candidates for President he is supporting.

"In every previous demand of him that he explain things to the people, the Governor has failed to say a word direct to the voters," Mr. Davis said. "Instead a lot of his small circle of supporters prepare and issue misleading statements, dealing in generalities and with no specific responses. The voters should pay no attention to statements issued by these two-faces but should demand that the Governor come out before them himself and explain."

POLICE SAY 'SLAIN' GIRL GABBED AS BOY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Julia Hannigan addressed in her own cellar, found a sweater and a pair of trousers belonging to her brother and ran away from home, police declared today after a fruitless search of the basement of the Hannigan home in Brooklyn for further clues that might lead to a theory that the 17-year-old school girl had been murdered.

The only clothing missing from the pile found in the Hannigan cellar was a pair of silk stockings and the police believe that Julia at the last moment, decided to retain this bit of feminine attire. The missing girl's sister, Edna, saw a youth emerge from the cellar the night Julia disappeared ten days ago and this "youth" is believed to have been the missing girl herself. The general alarm for her return still is out, but the murder theory has been abandoned.

The impossibility of complying with the subpoena requiring production of the departmental files without submitting extremely confidential data was said by Mr. Wilbur as probably influencing the recall of his summons by the California court.

John W. Davis Confident of Success; Pleads for Democratic Congress

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 22.—Winning up his brief personal campaign in Kentucky with an address here last night John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, warned that the ballots cast on November 4 would decide the destiny of the country for another four years and urged voters not to neglect on that day to discharge "the first and most solemn duty of an American citizen."

It is in the ballots of this country and the ballots alone," Mr. Davis said, "that its destiny rests and if we are false, by carelessness or by worse, we cannot criticize the shortcomings of those who take public office. We cannot complain in the years to come if disaster comes to visit us."

"Earlier in the day at Franklin, Bowling Green and Elizabethtown, the candidate had stressed the same plea in speeches from the rear platform of his car and had coupled with a special request for re-election of Senator A. O. Stanley and Representative Robert O. Thomas.

"If you are going to install an army," Mr. Davis said, reciting his experiences with party government, "you want the general and the privates and the captains and the colonels to wear the same uniform."

Mr. Davis asserted confidence that he would be elected to the presidency and pointed to what he said was the necessity of having a Democratic Congress to cooperate with him.

VANCEBURG, KY., October 22.—Monday was a big day for Vanceburg. The regular stock sales was augmented by a barbeque and Republican speaking, all of which brought an unusually large crowd into town.

Weeks Urges Election Be Kept Out Congress

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Declaring in a radio address here last night that the balloting on Nov. 4 will result either in the election of President Coolidge or the election being thrown into congress, Secretary Weeks predicted that in the latter event Charles W. Bryan, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate would be elected President by a coalition of Democrats and "radical elements" in the senate. Hence, the votes, the war secretary argued, are confronted with a choice between the two men.

"The voters know what the President is doing," Mr. Weeks said. "His record speaks for itself. The voters know that in the election of President Coolidge or the election being thrown into congress, Secretary Weeks predicted that in the latter event Charles W. Bryan, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate would be elected President by a coalition of Democrats and 'radical elements' in the senate. Hence, the votes, the war secretary argued, are confronted with a choice between the two men."

"Very few voters know anything about President Coolidge's principal opponent in this campaign, Charles W. Bryan. To the vast majority of the voters, he is known only as the brother of William Jennings Bryan."

"It has been said that Mr. Davis, the Democratic candidate for the presidency, personally selected Mr. Bryan as his running mate in order to secure the supposedly powerful support of the William Jennings Bryan element of the Democratic party, to whom Mr. Davis was not acceptable, and to inflame as much as possible the effect of the bitter attacks made against him in the Democratic convention by William Jennings Bryan. This statement has never been denied."

Notes For Women

A new antiseptic has been discovered that is four times as powerful as Carbolic Acid. It is much more powerful than bichloride of mercury. Yet it is so harmless that one can drink it and so mild in its action that it is a healthful wash for the most delicate membrane. Chemists say it will take the place of harsh poisonous germ killers. By getting a 60-cent bottle of Kelsa at Fisher & Strick's Pharmacy, Warner Bros., or any good druggist women can learn much of personal hygiene that will be of benefit to them.—Advertisement.

Mr. Hard Talks To All Saints Men

At a meeting last night of the members of All Saints church, in the All Saints parish house, a fine talk on the official life of President Harding was given by Honorable Charles B. Hard, personal secretary to the late president.

After a dinner served by the members of one of the guilds, Mr. Hard was introduced by Robert G. Bryan. Mr. Hard recalled many of his experiences at the White House and told of the many duties that devolved upon a president.

In his talk he stated that it was no wonder the president's life was a short one, for he kept working daily from six in the morning to midnight every night, except when something came along to take him off his duties, which was seldom.

Several musical selections were given by members of a quartet, who volunteered their services during the evening. After Mr. Hard's talk a short business session was held.

Bond Issue For Purchase Of County Fair Grounds

At the election, November 4, the voters of Scioto county will have the opportunity of voting upon a $250,000 bond issue for the purpose of purchasing permanent fair grounds. This action has been endorsed by the Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce, The Granges and the Farm Bureau.

The half-million will be for one year only and will mean, if carried, a tax of 5c on each $100, or 50c on each $1,000 of taxable property.

The lease on the present grounds expires in seven years. The men who are now managing the fair say that because of the short time before the lease expires, necessary improvements cannot be made, and unless the bond issue carries, a Scioto County fair may soon be a thing of the past.

Luxurious Furs Adorn These Model Coats

Exclusive, one-of-a-kind creations trimmed with the richest furs.

You'd know the moment you laid eyes on them that the graceful lines, that touch of flashing smartness, that indefinable something called style could have found their origin only in the Land of Fashions, France.

They are indeed direct copies of latest imported models, reproductions that are exact to the minutest detail—and offered at a cost much less than the originals. They are deliciously warm with their luxurious collars, cuffs and borders of Fitch, Seal, Beaver, Mink, Squirrel or Muskrat.

The soft suede-like fabrics—Faunskin, Cashmerine, Jaquana and Kashmir—are splendidly adapted for fashioning such magnificent garments. Some are severely plain as becomes coats of such richness, others secure a charming effect by the use of panel trimming of various kinds.

If you want a coat that will be exclusive with you—a lovely wrap that will have no duplicate in Portsmouth—then we suggest that you purchase one of these exquisite models. We have only one style of each kind so we advise an early selection while the choicest are here.

Burns After Release
CINCINNATI, Oct. 22.—George Burns, veteran Cincinnati National outfielder will confer with President Herrmann at the Reds this week, seeking his release as a free agent. It is understood that he may become manager of a Pacific Coast league club. Jack Hendricks, manager of the Reds, is now in the west scouting for new material. He will attend the St. Paul American association and Seattle Pacific Coast League post-season series to look over infielder Charles Dessen, of the Saints, who will join the Reds in the spring.

Reports on Portland and San Francisco players have been received by Hendricks and he probably will be able to close certain deals which he now entertains. Six men in all, playing in the west are being scouted by Hendricks.

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR UTILITIES

Coal

Not all of the heat in the coal burned under the boilers at our power plant is converted into electric energy. In fact only about eleven per cent of the energy in the coal we burn reaches our customers in the form of electric energy.

In spite of this big difference, our plant is, according to United States government statistics, considerably more efficient than the average electric light and power plant in the United States. It is, in fact, one of the most efficient plants of its size in the country.

You can readily see from these facts, however, that there is a considerable expense for coal involved in furnishing you with electric service.

DAVIS

ation and the maintenance of things as they are. By no stretch of the imagination can West Virginia be called a radical state, or even one that has had bi-partisan hand-picked to have repressed her true feelings. To the minds of West Virginians, John Davis doesn't represent anything radical, though in conservative circles the addition of Governor Bryan to the ticket has been regarded with mingled feelings of surprise and consternation. Political expediency, which covers a multitude of sins, is accepted as the only reason for the action of John Davis in joining the Nebraska Governor in a campaign. For here, where they know Davis, they insist there never has been a thing in common between the Bryan idea of democracy and the Davis brand.

John Davis has lived away from West Virginia for a few years and the selection of Bryan probably was born of a desire to prove to the political world that he was a conservative with an appreciation of what the West is not called radical, but progressive—the middle ground between an unwillingness to move in the direction of the masses in their quest for economic relief and the experimentation of the extremists. Governor Bryan is not regarded in the West as an extremist like the one who has been in office here, but as an executive who has attempted to practice in office what he preached outside, and who has not upset the economic order by his theories.

Yet as one goes into West Virginia and the East generally, the very name Bryan suggests instability to the conservative. Though the Democrats have endeavored to show that of the Bryan brothers, the one running for vice-president has always been the business man, nevertheless, there is not the response that such an argument might get west of the Mississippi river. For Davis' membership in an incomprehensible organization in a conservative state like West Virginia, where conservatism alone can aid John Davis to carry the state as La Follette, not Coolidge, will get large numbers of the labor and radical citizenry.

ILLINOIS TO WIN TITLE MUST DEFEAT IOWA, STATE, CHICAGO AND MINNESOTA

C. & O. LINE MAY BE EXTENDED INTO COLUMBUS

NAME THOMAS-FOR-JUDGE COMMITTEE

CHICAGO, October 22.—Possibility of a tie for the western conference football championship, as in 1923, daily grows more remote. Only two teams retain records of having been neither tied nor defeated. Four other teams have at the score, with no defeats on their records.

Illinois, one of the undefeated eleven, meets Chicago, the other undefeated squad, as well as three of the four teams having tie scores, making the 1924 elimination contest a closer affair than for many years.

The fourth team having a tie score but no conference defeat, Wisconsin, does not play Illinois, but meets Michigan, Iowa and Chicago.

Illinois, to remain undefeated, has to win over Iowa, Chicago, Minnesota and Ohio.

Chicago, the other undefeated eleven, has five more conference opponents including Illinois. Of the four teams having a tie score, Ohio and Minnesota have three more conference games and Wisconsin and Iowa four more each.

Interest in this week's preparations centers on Chicago and Ohio, growing for their meeting in Columbus Saturday. The Maroons leave tomorrow night for the Ohio battle grounds.

Pointing is Michigan's worry in its preparations for Wisconsin. Rocke is on crutches as a result of the Illinois game last week and Parker, the other leader, is out with injuries. Secrest, previous at the Badger camp, where the finishing touches are being applied before the departure for Ann Arbor tomorrow.

Notre Dame, giving itself for another eastern invasion, is kept for a center to replace Captain Adam Walsh against Princeton.

The Chillicothe Gazette, of local interest, says:

Chillicothe is going to have another steam railroad touching her edge. The C. and O. branch, which is to connect the main line's east fields in West Virginia and Kentucky and their northern connection at Valley Crossing, near Columbus, is going to be built after all.

Surveyors have been here at work for the past six weeks finishing in this section today or tomorrow. The branch line, from all that can be learned, will connect onto the spur built a year or two ago as far as Glen Jean, at the edge of Waverly, and be brought up across the Scioto river at a point near Waverly and carried over through the country to a point where it will strike the high ground east of the Scioto river, east of the city.

The line will come closest to Chillicothe, either at the East Main street bridge, over the Scioto, or where the N. and W. crosses the Marietta pike with an overhead crossing. The line of railway as now planned will skirt the river on the high ground, a bench being cut in the hills and Mt. Logan, bringing it out at the point where the N. and W. bridge crosses the Marietta pike. It is said there will be an overhead crossing by the new railroad over the N. and W. at that point, and that the line will sweep northward to Columbus west of Kingston.

The C. and O. N. is now operating its trains over the N. and W. to Valley Crossing from Glen Jean in Pike county, but the lease is said to run for only five years and it will take that long to build the new spur, once it is decided to go ahead.

That such a decision is to be forthcoming, is taken from remarks dropped by the engineering corps working here, who pointed out that their freight is tied up too frequently on the congested N. and W. Lines to satisfy them or their patrons, and that the only way out of the trouble is to build a new line. The Van Sweringen merger, which was effected recently by building this line, will be able to hook up the C. and O. N. and the Hocking Valley, both of which are units in their rail system, and will thus gain a through right of way to the Great Lakes on their own steel.

A Thomas-for-Judge committee, composed of many prominent citizens interested in the re-election of Judge James S. Thomas for the Common Pleas court, has been organized for the purpose of aiding him in his campaign.

With this in view the committee, through its chairman, Judge A. T. Holcomb, president of the Scioto County Bar association, is preparing to send out a mail to every voter in the county within the next few days, letters and literature, pointing to the splendid record of Judge Thomas on the bench and urging his re-election.

Friends of Judge Thomas are free to predict his election by a big majority.

BRITISH

treaty and the league and left us for the next five years outside of the league. During precisely this period, the breach between France and Britain prevented the league from becoming a major factor in world affairs. Deprived of our aid the British were unable in the league to make head against the continental nations while the arrival of Poincare put the league utterly in the shade. Nor did Lloyd George after the Slesian decision of the league retain much affection for Geneva, while his successors, Bonar Law and Stanley Baldwin were content to let it remain the exclusive plaything of Lord Robert Cecil and General Smuts, so far as Britain was concerned.

British Attempt To Use League

The growth of popularity of the league among the smaller states of Europe, both the successful states of the war and the nations which were neutral in the great conflict represented the real progress of the Geneva experiment between 1919 and 1924. The advent of Ramsey MacDonald foreshadowed a new British attempt to employ the league as an ally of British purpose. Thus the question became at once whether France or Britain would be able to obtain the leadership within the league—and if France remained in the balance attitude the consequences were bound to be unhappy for her.

If, on the contrary the French should decide to adopt the league, to accept it unhesitatingly, then French advantage would be obvious because the influ-tial members of the league are continental states with conditions and conceptions far more closely resembling French than British. At Geneva France would be sure of precious allies, away from Geneva, that is with only formal representation at the league, France was bound to be distanced by Britain.

Accordingly Herriot went to Geneva and took with him about the most brilliant delegation any nation has ever had there. And quite automatically there rallied to France a decisive number of other states. The battle became quite inevitably between the insular and the continental conceptions and the continental prevailed by force of numbers supplemented by the skill and ability of the French representatives.

French Out-Maneuvered British

Instead of championing the league against French opposition the British representatives found themselves constantly embarrassed by the extent to which the continental nations under French leadership were seeking to bring Britain to the league by far-reaching obligations. An example of this was the fashion in which Geneva seized upon a rather clumsy utterance of Lord Parmoor to give it the character of a proffer of the British fleet as the maritime policy agency of the league, thus necessitating a formal denial by MacDonald in London, which had unpleasant echoes in Geneva. Thus, too, at the end, the question was raised not as to whether France would accept the protocol, but Britain—and the question remains.

Protocol For Continental Europe

The protocol which gives form to the League of Nations, provided it is adopted, which indicates the direction and purpose of the league, is purely and simply a continental European document, based upon the realities of continental European conditions. It does not outlaw war, it prohibits the individual nation from having recourse to arms under penalty of being the target of the combined strength of arms and other resources of the league, although recognizing that not all nations in the league will use arms to enforce the league decision.

It is the product of a concert of nations which have open frontiers and a fear of attack, it is chiefly the work of nations which have recently established a status quo in Europe by force of arms and fear that in the more or less distant future this status quo will be challenged by those whose own frontiers suffered modification by reason of the treaties of peace. Membership in the league involves renunciation of all such aspirations to change existing conditions and the main purpose of the league becomes to prevent the realization of any such aspirations by force, which is after all the sole means. The league offers all nations satisfied with their existing status moral protection against modification, but it tacitly inhibits any national ambition to restore lost provinces or realize imperial aspirations.

The success or failure of the forthcoming disarmament conference will depend entirely upon the degree to which the nations concerned feel justified in relying upon the force of the league to make good the restrictions of their armed strength. The protocol is a square assertion of the continental view of security accompanying an acceptance in principle of the insular view of arbitration. Moreover I find it excessively difficult to see how America can usefully participate in such a disarmament conference, in which all reduction of armaments will be based upon mutual guarantees of support in case of aggression invited or made dangerous by a limitation of armaments, precisely as long as the United States declines in advance to share in any of the guarantees, financial or otherwise.

In a word the orientation of the league has been away from the conception of nations uniting to keep the peace by their own abstention from war and resort to arbitration, the Anglo-American conception, and toward a combination of powers to preserve the peace, not alone by keeping it but also by using some sort of force to restrain nations which resort to war, either nations which, being members of the league, thus violate their league pledges or nations outside the league, which use force against member-nations.

War Exclusive Right To Nations In League

War becomes, then, not the individual right of any nation, but the exclusive prerogative of the nations belonging to the league, acting under the decision of the league and morally bound to support the league's decisions by some sort of force, economic, financial or physical. Nations are bound to resort to arbitration but the league is committed to the coercion of any nation disregarding this obligation, coercion to the end that the victim of an aggression may be protected or defended.

Therefore in fact every member nation is bound to support every other in defending the existing state of European frontiers and the league's vitality turns henceforth on the degree to which it can fulfill this mission and the extent to which the member nations will dedicate their own national forces to this end. Any disarmament conference, accordingly will succeed or fail as nations are persuaded to reduce their individual armed strength in return for the promise of the support of the collective armed strength of the league. In a telegram to Chairman Borah today, Mr. Knox denied the statement made at the Chicago hearings by Frank Walsh, attorney for Senator LaFollette, that trust companies and national banks had been requested at a recent meeting of the American Bankers' Association to contribute a percentage of their capital to fight LaFollette in the west. The telegram follows: "Referring to the recent meeting of the American Bankers' Association in Chicago, Sunday's papers broadcast the following statement already having been read into the record by Frank T. Walsh: "A speech was made requesting that all trust companies be required to give one-twentieth of one per cent of their capital and national banks one-tenth of one per cent of their capital as contributions to fight LaFollette in the west." "Inasmuch as no such statement appears in the records of any convention of which transcript was made and to the best of my knowledge and belief, no such statement was made. I would be glad to receive the name of the speaker to whom Walsh referred." "No request has ever been made by the American Bankers' Association for funds for political campaign purposes. I trust this correction may be accorded by you the same opportunities for publicity as the statement read into your record by Walsh."

WASHINGTON, October 22.—(By the United Press)—As the inquiry into the alleged collection of a huge "slush fund" in Pennsylvania began here today Chairman T. V. O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, was called and denied he had charged that Russia had contributed funds for Senator LaFollette's campaign. He said that he had asked "how much money was being sent in from Soviet Russia to win this fight" in a political speech and that he had no evidence that any money had been sent.

O'Connor was the first witness called to the stand today.

"You are reported to have charged that some of the money for Senator LaFollette's campaign was sent here by Soviet Russia," said Chairman Borah.

"I didn't make any such statement," said O'Connor, and read from a speech in which he asked "how much money was being sent in from Soviet Russia to win this fight?"

"I was asking a question," he said. "That is not a question but a declaration," interposed Senator Caraway, of Arkansas.

"What did you base your question on then?" asked Borah.

"Common rumor," replied O'Connor.

In answer to Borah's questions O'Connor said that he had heard the rumors from engineers and shipping men coming from Russia and that he "believed in his heart" Soviet Russia was aiding the fight.

O'Connor said he advanced about $300 to Joseph Ryan, first vice president of the Longshoremen's Association, to pay hotel and taxi bills incurred here by a delegation of Longshoremen who visited President Coolidge Labor Day.

Ryan has since returned the money, O'Connor said.

Untermeyer then took up the cross-examination and asked O'Connor if he had not read LaFollette's statement issued last year on his return from Russia in which the Wisconsin senator declared himself opposed to the soviet government.

The witness said he did not recall the statement.

"Did you mean to convey to your audience that the soviet government was financing Senator LaFollette's campaign?" asked Untermeyer.

"I wanted my question answered," O'Connor replied.

"Has the soviet government agents in this country?" asked Untermeyer.

"I believe so," said O'Connor, but added that he did not know of his personal knowledge.

"Will you state if anybody told you that the soviet government was financing LaFollette's campaign?" Untermeyer continued.

"I believe Thomas Healy, of the Engineers' Association, told me that the soviet government was sending money here for the LaFollette campaign. Some of the crews told him of this," said O'Connor.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT WEST, DO YOUR PART, WE'LL WIN, DAWES TELLS PENNA. VOTERS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—(By The Associated Press)—The story of the establishment of the federal budget system under President Harding and a Republican administration was told by Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice-president and first budget director in an address at the Academy of Music here tonight opening his seven day eastern speaking campaign.

The address was the first extended discussion of the budget by Mr. Dawes during the campaign. He combined with it a continuation of his attack on the La Follette candidacy, directing his fire particularly at the La Follette platform declaring for congressional veto of supreme court decision.

Mr. Dawes spoke before an audience that packed the house. Beginning his address Mr. Dawes took occasion to speak of the economic interdependence of the east and west. He said that he might be tempted to think of himself "if this thing runs along much longer as a great man, but between us girls it really sometimes makes me sick."

"Credit for establishment of the budget system, Mr. Dawes declared, lay not in enactment of the budget law, but in the courage of President Harding in putting the system into effect.

"The budget law was only an incident," he asserted. "The law was a good thing because it outlined the method and because it called attention to what any president could have done."

"The vice-presidential nominee emphasized, however, that he did not consider the budget or any of the other subjects mentioned in the national platforms of the two major parties as the dominant issue in the campaign.

"The real issue in this campaign was raised July 7 when an attack was launched against the constitution of the United States, he declared, referring to formation of the La Follette independent movement. He assailed the La Follette platform declaration for curbing the power of the supreme court and told his audience that "the people of the east need not fear for the west."

"They recognize in the west that a real issue has been presented, and out there you are going to see, not the small percentage of a vote you have had recorded in those states in the past, but a vote greater than in any previous election," he added.

"Don't fear for the west. Only you people here do your duty as well as they will do it out there."

OBITUARY

L. C. Peel
Expressions of regret were heard on all sides last night when it was learned that Louis C. Peel had passed away at his home, 220 Court street. He had been ill many weeks with complications, but his friends did not realize that his condition was grave. For the past week he had hovered at the brink of death, the final summons coming Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30, with loved ones at the bedside.

Mr. Peel was one of the city's best known business men and possessed a wide circle of friends. When the Geeks distributed so much sunshine to needy families in the city he always took an active part in the work and derived much pleasure in looking after those less fortunate than he. He was genial, whole-souled and companionable and will be missed, especially in the West End section of the city. He was manager for the R. T. Meyers Furniture company and was for seven years connected with the Horebow Furniture company. In 1904 he organized the Peel Storage company of which he was in active charge until his death.

Mr. Peel was the first and best known business man in the West End section of the city. He was active in the West End Improvement Association and always had the welfare of the district at heart.

He belonged to the local order of Eagles and was a charter member of the Geeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Peel were married in the present Alan Jordan home, Court street, November 18, 1891. Mrs. Peel was before marriage Miss Mary E. Agnew.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. L. C. Peel, one son, Ralph C. Peel, who is connected with the Portsmouth Works, Wheeling Steel Corporation, and two grand-children.

Funeral services will be held from the home Thursday afternoon at two-thirty. The services will be in charge of Rev. William Gleiser. Interment in Greenlawn.

Mrs. Caroline Gilmore Washington
JACKSON, October 22.—Mrs. Caroline Gilmore Washington, of Dickson street, passed away suddenly Monday at 10 o'clock, although she had been in all health for all the past summer suffering from heart trouble, dropsy and complications. She was 70 years of age. About 35 years ago her first husband, John Gilmore, and their oldest son, William, met sudden death in a coal mine, leaving her with a family of small children to rear. In later years she was married to Mr. William Washington, who died about six years ago. Mrs. Washington is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Carrie Chalklett, of Kenosha, Ohio, and Mrs. Ada Ferris, of Cleveland; two sons, Clyde Gilmore, of Springfield, and George Gilmore, of Jackson, and eight grand-children, three of whom she had had in her home and been as a mother since the death of her youngest daughter, Mrs. Mabel Cassell, twelve years ago. These children are Roger and George Edward Cassell, now of Springfield, and Pauline Cassell, who was alone with her grandmother when suddenly stricken by death.

GOOD ROADS CONFERENCE HERE TOMORROW

Divisional Engineer C. M. Anderson of Columbus and Maintenance Engineer H. S. Perry will represent the state highway department and Executive Secretary W. A. Alsford of the Ohio Good Roads Federation will be present at a good roads conference to be held here Thursday morning at the court house starting at ten o'clock.

Members of the Ohio legislature and road officials of the Ninth Division of the state will be here to confer with each other relative to the tentative state highway program and budget which has been prepared by the federation in co-operation with the state highway department.

Adams, Pike, Scioto and Lawrence counties will have representatives in Portsmouth. Fayette, Ross, Highland and Brown counties will be represented at a meeting at Hillsboro Friday.

The program prepared by the federation is the most comprehensive ever attempted in this state. It shows every proposed improvement, construction, reconstruction, resurfacing, widening, grade crossings, bridges, etc., with the cost of each project. After the program has been accepted by the local officials and approved by the state highway department, it will be laid before the general assembly for its guidance in framing a state highway budget.

ROAD HEARING IS HELD; DECISION TO COME LATER

Hearing on a petition directed to the state department of highways and county commissioners seeking a change in the route of intercounty highway 102 known as the South Webster road, from its present location over Allegheny Hill to what is known as the "Happy Hollow route" was conducted at the courthouse Wednesday morning by G. Murray Anderson, of Chillicothe, division engineer for the state department of highways.

John Miller and more than eighty others composed a delegation that appeared to urge selection of the Happy Hollow route and a delegation of 23, with Fred Turner as spokesman, was present and remonstrated against granting the petition, and at the same time made it known that they are in favor of the Gephart route, eliminated from consideration as the result of a former hearing. After hearing the objection from the Turner delegation to the proposed change from Allegheny Hill to Happy Hollow, Engineer Anderson advised that a new petition be presented for the Gephart route and it was indicated that this will be done at once.

Yalton Harold, as a representative of the Good Roads Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, appeared as a chief spokesman for the petitioners. He advocated the proposed change, pointing out the disadvantages of the Allegheny Hill route with its tremendous loss of grades and stressed the importance of locating main market roads where they would serve the people best. He referred to the saving of gasoline bills which the elimination of the hill would mean as well as the wear and tear on motor equipment and declared it would be to the best interest of the people in general to have the highway established over the Happy Hollow route. Others that spoke in favor of the change included J. L. Robinson, John C. Bauer and Floyd Lavinder. Adam Frick, president of the Chamber of Commerce, also spoke briefly.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Engineer Anderson advised that he would make a report of the meeting to the state director of highways at the earliest possible time for his consideration.

Claim Poole Expressed Opinion in the Case Of Alleged Spiritualists; New Trial Sought

Alleged misconduct on the part of Lincoln Poole, one of the members of the jury which heard the case, is the principal one of ten reasons advanced in a motion filed in Common Pleas court Tuesday seeking a new trial for Mrs. Lila June Merriman, 32, median, who was found to be guilty by a jury last Saturday under an indictment charging her with obtaining money from Mrs. Rebecca Snedecor by false pretense last July.

In support of the motion an affidavit signed by C. M. Copas, 505 Gay street, real estate agent, was filed in which he states under oath that on or about September 19, about the time the defendants were arrested, one Lincoln Poole while in the office of the Tripp Real Estate company, 422 1-2 Chillicothe street, expressed his opinion in discussing the case, that the defendants were all guilty and ought to be sent to the penitentiary. The discussion arose from reading an article in the Morning Sun, the official state paper.

Additional affidavits of Lila June Merriman, Louise Taylor, Don Taylor and Lloyd B. Merriman, and Attorneys Joseph T. Micklethwait and A. R. Campbell, who defended the accused, were also filed in support of the motion, in which they state that Juror Poole said that he had not formed or expressed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused at the time he was interrogated as to his qualifications.

Arguments on the motions will likely be heard by Judge Thomas Saturday morning.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Construction of an athletic stadium at Coney Island, costing more than a half million dollars and seating 40,000, is contemplated by a real estate syndicate. The arena, utilized for boxing and other outdoor sports, would be the largest in New York outside of the baseball parks.

FOLLOW THE CLASSIFIED COLUMNS
Throw your hat into the classified ring!

What was it that Al Jolson (right) told Cal Coolidge and John Drew that made them laugh so? Probably something about his Tennessee mammy or Alabama where the birds sing. At any rate the president held him up a cabinet meeting half an hour while he was entertained by a group of New York actors at the White House.

Faces Third Offense Charge

John Tinsley, 44, colored, will be required to appear in Municipal court Friday to answer to a third offense of violation of the dry laws as the result of the finding, the police claim, of eight half pints of "moon" at his abode in Paradise alley yesterday.

The penalty under the law for a third conviction of the liquor laws subjects the offender to imprisonment in the penitentiary.

After a rousing song service from 7:15 to 7:45, Dr. Pace again took up the study of the Epistle to the Ephesians. Each verse is so filled with great messages that it was necessary to spend another hour looking into the first fourteen verses. The central thought in these verses is "In Christ," and the burning message was filled with the goodness of God and His grace to all mankind. The word grace, as used in the Bible, defined in language which all can understand, means "God in action on our behalf."

Rheumatism

"Yes! it's all gone."

DO NOT close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. You can get rid of your rheumatism by building up your blood power. It is a fact that rheumatism is a "blood poverty." It is a means with the increase of red cells in your blood, impurities are destroyed. It is a fact that S.S.S. will help Nature build these red-blood-cells! S.S.S. is the most powerful blood purifier of the most powerful blood purifiers in existence. Its cleansers in thousands of rheumatic cases have been nothing short of amazing! The medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable. This is very important to remember. What can be more inspiring, more wonderful, than to see the shackles of pain released from your struggling body, swellings, lingering pains, stiffness of joints and muscles all disappear: your stomach made strong; your face pink with the old sweetheart glow, your blood enriched and your cheeks more plump as they used to be. You can do it! Take S.S.S., the great destroyer of rheumatic impurities.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The large size is more economical.

SEES DOUBLE

AD STONE
A peculiar eye ailment, similar to that which kept George Stine out of baseball a year has forced Ad Stone, star light heavyweight batter, into temporary retirement.
Stone came out of his recent bout with Young Strubbing, which he won by a neck margin, with a blurred vision. Various treatments failed to restore the sight to normalcy. Now he is seeing double. Stone was in line for a battle with Gene Tunney, the champion.

IT IS SO ASTOUNDING

WE can not resist returning to the subject of the profligacy with public funds, shown by the payment by the county commissioners as "damages" to persons, part of whose lands were taken to straighten out the Portsmouth-Otway highway so it would not be running across the Norfolk and Western railway every few hundred yards.

The elimination of these deadly crossings is altogether the part of wisdom; the payment of excessive sums to do so is the height of folly.

Most owners of automobiles have, at some time or other, traversed the road to Otway. They are familiar with the crossings, they are likewise familiar with the fact that the lands that lie to the right of the track, that is between Henley and Otway, are precipitous hills, of the kind generally referred to as "not worth fifteen cents an acre."

For this sort of land the county commissioners paid twenty times more than the best acres in Scioto county, even the famous Scioto bottoms are worth, and will bring, with the best of improvements.

They paid one owner, a man named Watson, the fabulous sum of $1,523 for a little over half an acre, while Watson's patch and the little shack on it were valued at only $40.

It is not among the probabilities, nor yet among the possibilities, that Watson could have been "damaged" three hundred times more than his whole possessions are worth.

Would any public official deal that way with his personal affairs? It actually makes one feel foolish to ask the question.

Go before the county commissioners, tomorrow, they are in session, and ask them for $250 for the most urgent repair to a road. The answer you will get is the one they give to all: "We haven't got the money."

No wonder they haven't. They paid $4,873 for two and a half acres of scrub and stone, and that's the way the money has gone.

That's one reason why taxes jump this year from $2 to $2.40, and the tax-payer is getting such little rim for his money.

THE MOUNTING TAXES

WE have had considerable to say, the past few days, about the expenditure of public money, giving instances where excessive and utterly profligate expenditures were made of the public moneys, instances where the county paid five hundred times more for a given consideration than the most careless individual would have paid for the identical thing.

All of us complain of any tax at all. We do well to become deeply concerned when the taxes continue to go up by leaps and bounds, and there is scant, if any appreciable gain in public service.

This year the tax rate in the city of Portsmouth will certainly expand from $2 on the $100 valuation to $2.40. It may even go higher than that. Forty cents represents an enormous increase, 20 per cent. Its enormity is swelled when it is considered that tax valuations this year will be greater by about two millions than last year.

Consider the increase in actual dollars and it becomes startling. The assessed valuation of the city is, considering round numbers only, fifty-three million dollars. Forty cents additional tax rate means its inhabitants will have to pay two hundred and twelve thousand dollars more in taxes next year than they paid last year. There are, in round numbers also, fifty thousand inhabitants. Two hundred and twelve thousand dollars means more than four dollars for every breathing soul.

This thing can not be permitted to go on forever. It must be stopped.

The only way to stop it is by a change in the county offices, putting entirely new men in place.

But may be you are a hardshell Republican, in which case you will say: "Ah, well, all the old county officials go out this year, and new ones come in." That's so in one way and in another it isn't. The personnel of the places will be different, but the officials will be controlled, just as they have always been, by the oligarchy of periwit politicians, who see that deputies and relations are always taken care of with the jobs. The motives and the conduct of affairs will be just the same, unless there is a real change, a revolution.

A new broom sweeps clean, especially in public places.

THE ICY MIT—FOR AN INSURGENT

As It Happened 24 Years Ago

(From our issue of October 22, 1900)

A license to wed was issued to Charles M. Hartshorn, 27, minister, Jasper, and Mattie O. Hartshorn, 19, teacher, Wheelersburg.

William C. Collett, 22, shoemaker, and Julia A. White, 23, both of Portsmouth, obtained a license to wed.

A mock trial was a feature of the evening when Frank J. Kehoe entertained the men folks of All Saints Church, at his home.

Burkie Dundup, 8 years old, started from here on a journey to Belfast, Wis. today, to visit an aunt. He had a tag on his back reading "I am a tag on consoling him to the tender mercies of trainmen."

J. K. Davis, well known Otway man, sold his farm to George Walsh and then put through a deed by which he became proprietor of the Arlington Hotel.

The thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Portsmouth Reading Club, was celebrated with an elaborate banquet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Tremper.

$20 HIGHER NEXT WEEK

WE notice that warning is given in an advertisement of a washing machine. It's a familiar sort these days. Everything manufactured is going higher.

In this particular instance the reason is clear—tariff and combination.

In the campaign of 1920, Harry Daugherty, Harding's campaign manager, went over the country promising rich rewards for campaign contributions.

The trusts and the combines gave and gave liberally. When the Harding administration began business they were all there to demand fulfillment and they got it, got it heaped and running over in the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, the "Cucumber Bill," as Senator Pat Harrison calls it.

For the first time in the history of tariff legislation the bunk about protecting American free labor was cast aside. Protection was demanded and got for protection's sake alone, the privilege and the security of advancing prices without false pretence as to wages, simply for gain of those who pay to keep the political wheels going around.

American washing machines were then selling abroad for less than they were selling in this country, just as they are today, but the washing machine maker got more protection from any foreign competition that might possibly arise. The profits were heaping up by the millions. But these government fostered voraciousness grow with what they feed upon. They got more protection and they are making the consumer pay for it. Their disposition is to cut wages, not raise them.
